GOSPEL

Reading of the Holy Gospel according to Saint Mark (16, 15-20)

Jesus said to his disciples: "Go into the whole world and proclaim the gospel to every creature. Whoever believes and is baptized will be saved; whoever does not believe will be condemned. These signs will accompany those who believe: in my name they will drive out demons, they will speak new languages. They will pick up serpents with their hands, and if they drink any deadly thing, it will not harm them. They will lay hands on the sick, and they will recover."

So then the Lord Jesus, after he spoke to them, was taken up into heaven and took his seat at the right hand of God. But they went forth and preached everywhere, while the Lord worked with them and confirmed the word through accompanying signs.

REFLECTION

Today's Gospel forms part of the appendix of the Gospel of Mark which presents a list of some apparitions of Jesus: to Magdalene, to the two disciples who were walking out in the country and to the twelve apostles. This last apparition, together with the description of the Ascension into Heaven forms the Gospel for today.

The signs which accompany the announcement of the Good News. Jesus appears to the eleven disciples and reproaches them for not believing the persons who had seen Him resurrected. They did not believe Mary Magdalene, nor the two disciples on the road out in the country. Several times, Mark refers to the resistance of the disciples to believing the witness of those who experienced the resurrection of Jesus. Probably to teach two things: First, that faith in Jesus goes through faith in persons who give witness. Second, that no one should be discouraged when there is doubt in the heart. Even the eleven disciples doubted!

The mission to announce the Good News to the whole world. After having criticized the lack of faith of the disciples, Jesus confers their mission to them: "Go out to the whole world, proclaim the Gospel to all creation." To those who had the courage to believe in the Good News and who are baptized, Jesus promises the following signs: they will cast out devils, they will speak new languages, they will pick up snakes in their hands and be unharmed if they drink deadly poison, and they will lay their hands on the sick who will recover. This happens even today. To cast out devils is to fight against the force of evil which destroys life. The life of many people improves because they entered into the community and have begun to live the Good News of the presence of God in their life.

Through the community, Jesus continues His mission. Through us, He wants to continue His mission to reveal the Good News of God's love to the poor.
